About Pacific Rx

Pacific Rx is a U.S. telehealth service for GLP-1 and peptide therapy. Patients complete an online medical intake, a clinician licensed in the patient's state decides whether treatment is appropriate, and a licensed U.S. pharmacy prepares and ships what is prescribed. The patient's card is authorized up front and charged only if a clinician approves, so the decision is always yours to make on clinical grounds.

As a Pacific Rx clinician you review patient requests from the states where you are licensed, decide on treatment and follow your patients over time. The work is mostly asynchronous chart review, with video visits when a patient or medication needs one.

What you will do

- Review new patient requests in your queue: the intake, medical history, medications, allergies, uploaded labs and the patient's weight history.
- Make and document a decision: prescribe, decline, ask the patient for more information or refer out. You can message the patient from the review before deciding.
- Edit and sign the visit note. The platform drafts an H&P or follow-up note from the intake for you to correct, complete and sign.
- Write the prescription (dose, directions, quantity, refills), which is sent electronically to a licensed partner pharmacy.
- Hold video visits when one is required, inside the platform or on a video link, with scheduling and visit times recorded for you.
- Provide follow-up care: refill reviews, dose changes, side-effect checks and patient messages between reviews.

At a glance

| ITEM | DETAIL |
|---|---|
| Schedule | Flexible. No minimum hours; you can pause new patients at any time. |
| Patients | Adults seeking GLP-1 and peptide therapy, in states where you are licensed |
| Therapies | Compounded tirzepatide and semaglutide, and peptide therapies such as sermorelin, tesamorelin, NAD+ and BPC-157 |
| Pay | Flat fee per consult, the same whether or not you prescribe (see page 2) |

What you need

- An active, unrestricted license as an MD, DO or nurse practitioner, with prescriptive authority, in at least one U.S. state. Each state is reviewed and approved by our team before its patients reach you.
- An individual (Type 1) NPI.
- Malpractice coverage of at least $1,000,000 per claim and $3,000,000 annual aggregate, covering telehealth in every state where you see Pacific Rx patients. If a claim arises from care you provided through Pacific Rx, we reimburse your deductible, up to $5,000 per claim.
- Familiarity with GLP-1 therapy and an evidence-based approach to peptides, including knowing when not to prescribe.
- A computer with a camera and a reliable connection for video visits. DEA registration is optional and needed only for controlled medications.

Compensation

You are paid a flat fee for each consult you complete. The fee is the same whether or not you prescribe, so your pay never depends on a prescribing decision, a medication, a dose or a pharmacy. The same fees apply to physicians and nurse practitioners.

| SERVICE | FEE (USD) |
|---|---|
| Initial consult | $35 per new patient (async or video) |
| Ongoing follow-up care | $15 per patient for each month a follow-up review is completed, while the patient has an active order; messages between reviews are included |
| Video no-show | $15 when you wait 10 minutes past the start time and log it |

Fees are paid by direct deposit, usually the same day you sign, and itemized in your dashboard. As a 1099 contractor you handle your own taxes, malpractice policy and professional costs, and you are not eligible for employee benefits. Full terms are in the Clinician Compensation sheet you sign at onboarding.

How onboarding works

1. Create a provider account with your NPI and practice details.
2. Confirm your identity against the NPI registry and add your state licenses, which our team reviews and approves.
3. Review and sign your agreement and the compensation sheet online.
4. Set up direct deposit for your payouts.
5. We register you for electronic prescribing, and your queue opens for your approved states.
